

Advantage Announces Intention to Commence Substantial Issuer Bid and Entropy Provides Update on Entropy23™ Initial Performance

(TSX: AAV)

CALGARY, AB, Nov. 2, 2022 /CNW/ - Advantage Energy Ltd. ("Advantage" or the "Corporation") announces that the Board of Directors has authorized the initiation of a substantial issuer bid (the "Offer") pursuant to which the Corporation intends to offer to purchase for cancellation up to $100,000,000 of its common shares (the "Shares"). The Corporation anticipates that the terms and pricing will be determined, and the Offer will commence, during the next two weeks and will be completed before the end of December 2022.

This news release is for informational purposes only and does not constitute an offer to buy or the solicitation of an offer to sell Shares. The Offer referred to in this news release has not yet commenced. The solicitation and the offer to buy the Shares will only be made pursuant to a separate issuer bid circular, which will contain full details of the Offer and will be filed with the securities regulatory authorities in Canada and mailed to the Corporation's shareholders. Shareholders wishing to accept the Offer will have the opportunity to tender their Shares through a modified Dutch auction. The Offer will be optional for all shareholders, who will be free to choose whether to participate, how many Shares to tender and, in the case of auction tenders, at what price to tender within the specified range. Any shareholder who does not deposit any Shares (or whose Shares are not repurchased under the Offer) will realize a proportionate increase in equity interest in Advantage, to the extent that Shares are purchased under the Offer. The Corporation intends to fund the Offer with a combination of cash on hand and drawings on existing credit facilities. The Offer, which remains subject to the receipt of a satisfactory liquidity opinion from the Corporation's financial adviser, will not be conditional upon any minimum number of Shares being tendered and will be subject to conditions customary for transactions of this nature.

Update on Initial Performance of Entropy23™

In order to ensure complete, up-to-date disclosure in advance of Advantage's substantial issuer bid, Entropy Inc. ("Entropy", a subsidiary of Advantage) is pleased to provide a status update on Entropy23™ at the Glacier carbon capture and storage project.

In its first week since being introduced into the Modular Carbon Capture™ system, Entropy23™ has begun capturing carbon with frequent adjustments to operating parameters. During a relatively steady 28-hour period using a preliminary configuration, the system demonstrated a capture efficiency of approximately 95% with an initial heat duty of 2.9 GJ/tonne; CO₂ concentration of the flue gas was 5.3% and reboiler temperature was 116 degrees Celsius. This data, which was independently recorded and verified by researchers from the University of Regina's Clean Energy Technologies Research Institute, is consistent with management expectations given the very short operating history and variations in ambient temperature conditions.

As a result of Entropy23™'s high performance properties, capture rates have exceeded expectations; the system has not yet been configured to target a lower capture efficiency of 90%, which will be required prior to any relevant comparison to our MEA benchmarks (which are anchored on 90% capture rates, please see Entropy press release dated October 24, 2022).

The next steps are to configure the system to achieve steady 90% capture rates for data gathering, optimize the heat duty and gather long-term data on operating costs. This process is expected to take several months and no material data is expected to be generated prior to the end of December 2022, although further performance data may be released at any time as it becomes available.
